amount unpaid on shares in returns* adds new grounds for directors' disqualification and imposes new compensation orders for contravention of the Company Directors' Disqualification Act * requires all companies to keep a register of "people with significant control" over the company and to investigate and report on who has such control* enables private companies to elect to keep information about directors, company secretaries, members and people with significant control on the central register kept by the Registrar of Companies instead of maintaining their own registers In addition to the provisions of the SBEE, various accounting requirements have been amended including the criteria for what is a small and medium sized company, an obligation to prepare abridged (rather than abbreviated) accounts and adjustments to what must be shown in the notes to accounts.
